

State Standards of Media Literacy

Nationally recognized media educator Frank Baker offers workshops (staff and student) to help districts and schools meet state standards which include media literacy. To learn more, click here.

In 1999, I co-authored a major study of media literacy in state teaching standards. I continue to maintain this site and update it regularly. Should you have questions about this site, or about teaching standards, contact me: fbaker1346@aol.com

NOTE: 42 states have now endorsed the Common Core ELA Standards, and many are beginning the process of transitioning and implementing those new standards. In the database, I have maintained the current ELA standards for each state, even as many begin the transition. This document: media references in the Core Standard ELA document, should be referred to read how Common Core ELA refers to media.
