

What You See: Haiti

Haiti Earthquake News Photos Comparison

What you saw in the news (first photo) and what you didn't see (second)

US citizen Carla Shown, center, receives medical attention after being rescued by French firefighters from the rubble of the collapsed Montana Hotel in Port-au-Prince, Thursday, Jan. 14, 2010. (AP Photo/Ramon Espinosa)

Carl Juste/The Miami Herald (Associated Press) Sarla Chand recovering on Jan. 14 after being buried under rubble for more than two days.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, HAITI – JANUARY 26: In this handout image provided by the United Nations Stabilization Mission in Haiti (MINUSTAH), Police Officers chase suspected looters on January

26, 2010 in downtown Port-au-Prince, Haiti. Haiti is trying to recover from a powerful 7.0-strong earthquake that struck on January 12 and devastated the country, displacing millions and killing tens of thousands. (Photo by Marco Dormino/MINUSTAH via Getty Images)

A policeman aimed his rifle at looters in downtown Port-au-Prince on Jan. 26.

(Rodrigo Abd/Associated Press)